Mr. F. H. Selden,

Dear Sir:

Complying with your request, we have been glad to send you several items of Chiropractic literature.

These I hope you have looked into thoroughly. Chiropractic is a field well worth your attention from whatever standpoint you may approach it. Whether you are yourself [illegible] Chiropractic adjustments or contemplate the acquirement of the profession, there is no more inviting field open for your investigation. Chiropractic actually finds and positively removes the cause of disease, making possible the restoration of health to suffering humanity. Hundreds who have been given up by the old schools and have tested the merits of Chiropractic, stand ready to speak in its behalf.

To the practitioner it offers wonderful opportunities and promises prompt, substantial financial returns.

I am enclosing a folder which will show you how some well posted, practical people are taking advantage of the different ways in which Chiropractic instruction may be had.

With best wishes, I am,

Very truly yours,

Dict. Steno. #2
